

Stella Quah (Ph.D) is Professor of Sociology at the National University of Singapore. She began conducting sociological research on health behaviour in Singapore in 1972, initially at the Department of Community Medicine and Public Health and later on at the Department of Sociology of the National University of Singapore (formerly known as the University of Singapore). She was awarded a Fulbright-Hays scholarship from 1969 to 1971. Her research and professional activities include sabbaticals as Research Associate and Visiting Scholar at the Institute of Governmental Studies, University of California Berkeley (1986-87); the Center for International Studies at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the Department of Sociology at Harvard University (1993-94); the Harvard-Yenching Institute, Harvard University (1997); the Stanford Program in International Legal Studies, Stanford University (1997); the National Centre for Development Studies, Australian National University (2002); and the Walter H. Shorenstein Asia-Pacific Research Center, Spogli Institute for International Studies, Stanford University (2006). She was elected Vice-President for Research of the International Sociological Association (ISA) and Chairperson of the ISA Research Council for the session 1994-998; and served as Associate Editor of International Sociology (1998-2004). As part of her professional activities, Stella Quah serves in institutional review boards; is member of the Society for Comparative Research (US); and is member of international Editorial and Advisory Boards of several referee journals. She has published extensively on medical sociology, public policy and family sociology. Among her most recent publications are Crisis Preparedness: Asia and the Global Governance of Epidemics, ed., (Stanford, CA: Stanford University Shorenstein APARC & Brookings Institution, 2007); "Public image and governance of epidemics: Comparing HIV/AIDS and SARS," Health Policy, volume 80, 253-272, 2007; "Crisis Prevention and Management during SARS Outbreak, Singapore", Emerging Infectious Diseases, Vol. 10, No. 2 (February), 364-368, 2004, with Lee Hin Peng; "Traditional Healing Systems and the Ethos of Science," Social Science and Medicine, 57, 10, pp. 1997-2012, 2003; the International Handbook of Sociology (London: Sage, 2000) edited with Arnaud Sales; and Families in Asia: Home and Kin (London: Routledge, forthcoming).